The LA Phil performed the entirety of Mahler’s symphonic works in Los Angeles and again in Caracas over a six-week period. The Mahler Project included an historic performance of Mahler’s Symphony No. 8, popularly known as the “Symphony of a Thousand,” with a combined ensemble of 1,400 musicians and singers. The concert was broadcast live in HD from Caracas to theaters around the world.

Gustavo Dudamel embarked on the first production in a three-year celebration of Mozart and Da Ponte’s famed collaboration with a staged production of Don Giovanni, featuring installations designed by architect Frank Gehry and costumes by fashion design house Rodarte.

Conductor Laureate Esa-Pekka Salonen led the world premiere of the prologue from Shostakovich’s lost opera Orango in a semi-staged production directed by Peter Sellars. The LA Phil’s recording of Orango has been nominated for a number of awards including the 2013 Gramophone Classical Music Award.

Creative Chair John Adams oversaw the premieres of nine commissioned pieces including his own oratorio The Gospel According to the Other Mary, Enrico Chapela’s Magnetar, Anders Hillborg’s Sirens, and Philip Glass’ Symphony No. 9.

The Hollywood Bowl celebrated its 91st season with 14 weeks of concerts, featuring Gustavo Dudamel’s Americas and Americans festival and performances by such diverse artists as Yo-Yo Ma, Norah Jones, Herbie Hancock, Smokey Robinson, and Joshua Bell.

The LA Phil partnered with the Longy School of Music and Bard College to create Take A Stand: an innovative initiative that disseminates learning from the LA Phil’s YOLA program to a national audience. The inaugural Take A Stand symposium convened more than 300 music and social change advocates from 27 states and 13 countries.

Gifts to the LA Phil at any level and for any purpose are welcomed and appreciated. Donors at the Patron level and above are recognized each month in Performances magazine. A LETTER FROM THE PRESIDENT

It is my pleasure to share with you this snapshot of Fiscal year 2012/12, which highlights the LA Phil’s financial strength and the critical role that you play in making our success possible. The LA Phil is an international leader in the performing arts because of you, our dedicated donors, subscribers, and friends.

With the bi-continental Marker Project, the acclaimed launch of our Mozart/Da Ponte Trilogy, and an historic festival at the Hollywood Bowl, the LA Phil’s 2012 year was nothing short of extraordinary. Music Director Gustavo Dudamel’s passion for pushing the boundaries of art, geography, and culture is as infectious as it is inimitable. His unique spirit permeates all our efforts, compelling us to imagine and then create the future of music in Los Angeles and around the world.

The thoughtful, generous, and committed support of our more than 11,000 donors and 20,000 subscribers is the linchpin of our every success. President and Chief Executive Officer
Los Angeles Philharmonic Association

The LA Phil maintains a healthy, stable budget through rigorous planning and responsible financial management. The organization takes seriously its obligation to carefully steward the investment of every donor and subscriber. Because of your support, the LA Phil has maintained a strong financial position every year since moving to Walt Disney Concert Hall in 2003.

Last fiscal year, LA Phil donors provided 32% of the organization’s income. As seen below, donations to the Annual Fund totaled 25% of the annual budget while the returns on past gifts to the LA Phil’s endowment accounted for 7%.

The following charts illustrate the importance of your support during the 2012 Fiscal Year (October 2011 – September 2012) and the impact of your philanthropic investment.

Our mission is to perform present, and promote music in its many varied forms at the highest level of excellence for a large and diverse audience. Under the passionate leadership of Music Director Gustavo Dudamel, the LA Phil continues to challenge conventional thinking by reimagining the classics with renewed dynamism, inspiring through rich education programs, and forming cutting-edge collaborations across musical genres.

With the orchestral at the heart of its offerings and presentations that span genres, the LA Phil demonstrates breadth and depth of programming unrivaled by other cultural institutions. The LA Phil produces classical, pop, world music, and jazz performances throughout the year for an audience of more than one million Southern Californians at its two iconic venues: Walt Disney Concert Hall and the Hollywood Bowl. The LA Phil reaches more than 125,000 children and families annually through an ever-expanding array of educational offerings, including teaching artist residencies, after-school instrumental training programs, mentorships, and specially designed youth concerts.
