The New Year has arrived and we are back at school again after a long and relaxing winter break! Starting off our learning in the new year, the children will be talking about different animal habitats!

For the first week in January we are going to be learning all about the rainforest and the jungle. Kiddos will use their thumb prints to make monkeys on a tree and will use a variety of materials to create cheetahs, crocodiles, and toucans! Kiddos will use their art skills to draw a jungle scene with all their favorite jungle animals.

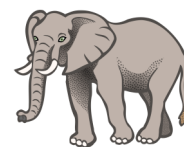

The second week of January will be all about polar animals. Children will match penguin syllables, write arctic animal names, and play a game of "I SPY" as they search for sight words on polar bears. Kiddos will be working on CVC word identification as well as review their reading skills as they work on their "fill in the sentence" worksheet.

Kiddos will explore the grasslands throughout the third week of January. They will use various materials to create elephants, zebras, and giraffes! They will investigate and examine a grassland themed sensory bin which will contain shredded green paper, bugs, and a variety of grassland animals.

As the first month of the year comes to an end, kiddos will learn all about the desert and its many habitants. They will sharpen their math skills as well as they work on their one-to-one correspondence. Children will work on a number sequence snake and practice completing desert themed patterns.
