November

Happy Harvest

Orange Room would like to welcome Jackson into the classroom. During the first week of November students will be learning about maps, globes and travel. This includes introducing students to the seven continents, the United States and travel. For Literacy students will be making passports and completing a map of the orange room. For math students will be measuring continents with rulers and writing down the numbers they see and sorting travel items in suitcases. For art students will be making cool globes using paper bowls and making a map of their houses.

During the second week of the month, we will be learning about our community. Topics include homes, hospitals, grocery stores and libraries. During literacy, students will look through grocery store ads and make a shopping list of five items. During math, students will choose a number card and place that many household items cutouts on the house mat.

At the art table, students will use q-tips to make an x-ray of themselves on black paper.

During the third and fourth week of the month, we will be learning about Thanksgiving, Pilgrims, and Native Americans. Topics include, thanksgiving, thankfulness, turkeys, Pilgrims, Native Americans, the Mayflower and cornucopias. During literacy, students will write the letters of their name on cut out feathers. Then, students will glue their feathers in order on a turkey cutout. During science, students will make the Mayflower using plastic cups, card stock, popsicle sticks and play dough. Students will place the boat in water to see if it sinks or floats. At the art table, students will use a brown paper bag along with cutouts to assemble a pilgrim.
