

NATIONAL DAY OF BELONGINGNESS

September 29

We're all alike, we're all different, and we're all wonderful!

Fostering a sense of belongingness means creating and maintaining an environment where everyone feels included, and at Primrose Schools, we've made that a part of every day for the past 40 years. In fact, this idea is so central to our Balanced Learning® curriculum that we've created the National Day of Belongingness, and we're inviting every family from Primrose and beyond to join us as we nurture respect, kindness, understanding and inclusivity.

JOIN OUR NATIONAL DAY OF BELONGINGNESS CELEBRATION

As we gear up for this special day, we wanted to share some of the classroom resources we use to help children learn about themselves and others in a way that's accepting of all.

Discover some of the books teachers use to help foster belongingness in our classrooms.

WEST LAKES EARLY LEARNING CENTER

We partnered with AdventHealth to support the launch of an innovative early education and care center that provides health, wellness and social services to children and families in underserved communities. Teachers use our Balanced Learning curriculum to empower their amazing young students and help them build a sense of belongingness. Over 90 percent of these students would not be able to attend the school without subsidized tuition. Please join us in supporting this wonderful cause.

What does belongingness really mean? How can we help make sure our children feel included and represented? We're diving into this and more, so look for opportunities on our Facebook and Instagram channels to add your own questions to the mix. Then check back on September 29 for the highlights or to watch the full video on our website.
