Whopper AI Generator

What's the idea

Design a personalized Whopper using Gen AI for a chance to win $1M.

How was A.I. used

Using the BK app or website, people were invited to submit creations with up to eight ingredients. AI created a visual preview, complete with a jingle and background that was shareable across social.

Key Takeaways

1

Customer Centricity

All good aspects of AI come from data. Don't get caught up by gimmicks, stay focused on your strategy and ways to create value for customers. Keep your teams aligned cross-functionally and compliant.

2

Embrace Creativity

Once your foundations in place, the true opportunity is learning how customers engage with your brand. This should inspire ideation and future marketing campaigns. Consider local nuances towards AI.

3

Inspiration is Everywhere

There are so many different industries launching a variety of AI-Inspired Campaigns. Grab the valuable nuggets and get inspired about your category.

Nobody Got Fired for Spending (Even More) on Digital and Tech

The period of more lasted for quite a long time. Digital is a hungry beast after all, with a seemingly unending array of alluring tools, tech, talent, and channels. I became a marketing analyst back in early 2016 — a time when martech and digital channels accounted for a serious chunk of total marketing budgets. At that time, our annual CMO Spend and Strategy Survey reported average enterprise marketing budgets at a whopping 12.1% of company revenue. More than a quarter of the total marketing budget was allocated to technology in 2016, and each of the top three channels ranked by spend were digital.

While 2016 may have represented a high watermark in terms of total marketing budget, it certainly wasn't an outlier — indeed, technology spend as a proportion of total marketing budgets peaked at almost a third (29.2%) of marketing budgets in 2018. And marketing budgets averaged an impressive 11.2% of company revenue between 2016 and 2020.
