About Myself

Having been born and raised in Mililani, Hawai'i my whole life, and as of now, the first and only member of my family to have gone through college, I come from a very extensive background which I have grown to appreciate more and each passing day. Its my source of inspiration, and above all my motivation to work hard and be the best I can be in my field of work.

I always push for a hundred percent in each project I do, and I'm confident that with even more practice, I can become even more adept at programs I already use on a daily basis. I choose to strive to learn new things always, and promise to show it in the work I demonstrate always.

Its not easy being in a new place after having lived on an island for so long but regardless, I never let it get to me. I see everything new as inspiration for things to take to me to new heights.
